“ I will always remember Craig’s intensity. Playing basketball, cheering on the Lightning and the Rebs, driving many miles just to pick up some Benton’s bacon, and just about anything else he was into. He is sorely missed, but there are many experiences with him that will always bring a smile.

“ Craig was my son-in-law
My first impression of him was that he had really good manners
After his daughter was born, I stayed with the family for a few weeks.
He would come to his house after work admire, his lovely new daughter, we would eat dinner and then he would study for his certification as a financial analyst for several hours. He passed, most people do not accomplish this the first time they try.
His commitment impressed me.
He is truly missed.

“ My deepest condolences go out to Marcy, Ella, and the rest of Craig’s family. I worked closely with Craig over the last couple of years. Craig was so helpful and very instrumental in the success of many of his colleagues. For his guidance and leadership he will be deeply missed, but even more so for his friendship.

“ Craig Sanford was my dad. He was and is a great an amazing person and an even better father. Times are going to be so so so hard ahead of my mom and i, but my dad will always be there for us. He'll never truly begone, and although he may never walk with me at my wedding or take me to another hockey game i am truly grateful to have known my dad for the 15 years of my life i did.

“ Craig was a great addition to the Murphy team. I will miss bouncing ideas off of him and seeking his input when I needed a seasoned and knowledgeable point of view. He will be missed!

“ I loved Craig Sanford. He was part of an incredible friend group who has been communicating daily for many, many years. He always made us laugh and we shared a lot of great memories. This picture is from just six weeks ago when I travelled down to spend time with Marcy, Ella and him. We watched a Lightning win downtown together during the Stanley Cup Finals and had our usual great time. I'll miss him terribly.
